

Fieldwalking

Fieldwalking is sometimes required in order to collect any artefacts which have been turned up by the plough. This will help inform the Planning Authority as to the likelihood that important archaeological sites might be encountered, and to assist in determining appropriate mitigation should deposits be found to survive on the site.